

Just in the Nick of Time

When I am talking to a person after they cross over about their experiences surrounding the time before they cross, the answers are as individual as the people that give them. When I ask the question, “did you suffer?” I get similar responses. They say that they were in no pain, or remember no pain around that time. These are people that have taken a long time to pass, as well as those who have crossed traumatically, such as a car accident.

Since I am a research hound, I then take this question to the guides and Angels surrounding the particular person, as well as the person themselves. I ask if they can give me an explanation as to why they think this is the case. The answer is always the same. The person is removed from their body, and the soul is taken up to heaven, or other side. As in the case of a car accident, it is usually right before impact.

To me it is also like the drug that Andrew was on in the hospital that they gave him before his lumbar punctures. The spinal injections looked quite painful, but Andrew remembered none of it a few seconds after supposedly feeling it.

I hope this answers this question for some of you. Please feel free to comment below, or just leave your thoughts on the matter.
